- 1 Discuss these questions in pairs or small groups.
 - 1 Which of these ways of studying do you prefer? making your own written notes watching a video recording reading textbooks discussing subjects with other students listening to the teacher practising by yourself

- 2 Do the other members of the group have similar preferences?
- 2 Read the text below. Then complete the tasks on page 5.

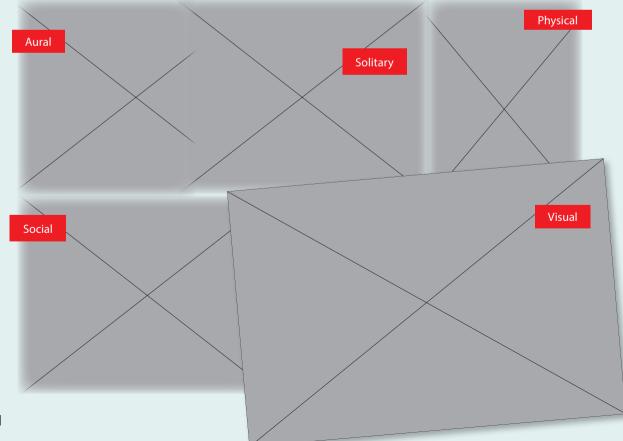

Most experts agree that there are three basic learning styles, as shown here

Visual learners prefer learning by seeing, either through reading or with pictures and other images. Aural learners learn best by hearing words or music, while physical learners tend to use their bodies and sense of touch ('learning by doing'). No matter which of the three basic groups you are in, you may work best either

5 on your own or with others, but obviously it's impossible to be both a social and a solitary learner.

In reality, though, a person's own learning style is neither simple nor fixed. Each of us has a mixture of learning styles. Many people find that they have one style that suits them best, while others use different styles according to what they are studying. Also, you can make efforts to improve your learning in styles that you are less good at.

1	What is most helpful for aural learners? A pictures B written texts C music and sounds
2	What is most helpful for visual learners? A loud reading B charts C lecture
3	Complete these sentences with words and phrases from the text.
	1 Learners may be either social or, but not both.
	2 Physical learners to learn by doing something practical.
	3 Some people vary their ways of studying the subject they are learning.
4	Which learning styles are most suitable for these students?
	I'd rather show you how to do it than explain it.
	1 Learning style:
	I'm quite good at hearing differences in how people speak.
	2 Learning style:
	I find it hard to focus on my own. Can I study with you, please?
	3 Learning style:
	I often draw diagrams to help me understand ideas.

3 Discuss this question in pairs or small groups.

Think about the ways you prefer to learn. What kind of learner do you think you are?

1 Read the text below. Then complete the tasks.

Tips for smarter learning

Traditionally, schools tend to use particular teaching methods (either visual or aural, using books, CDs and written tests). Pupils who learn well with these styles are often seen as 'clever', while those who use different styles may find themselves in lower classes, labelled as 'slow learners'. In reality, they may be neither slow nor especially clever, but if they are treated differently, they may begin to believe the label that others put on them.

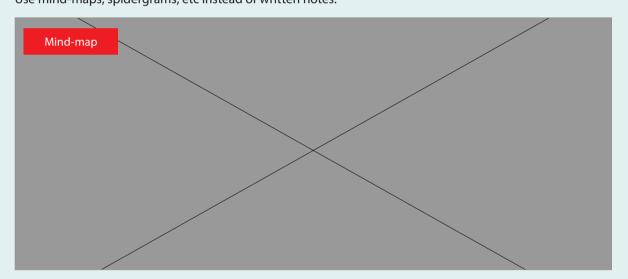

But it doesn't have to be that way. Becoming more aware of your personal learning style can help you to take control of your learning by using techniques that work well for you. For example, here are some tips on how to adapt your study to your learning style:

Visual learners

Turn your notes into pictures, charts or diagrams.

Don't have things around you that might distract your attention.

Look at general ideas first before focusing on details.
 Use mind-maps, spidergrams, etc instead of written notes.

Aural learners

Record lectures or lessons to listen to later. Discuss ideas with other students. Read textbooks aloud (when you're alone!).

Listen to quiet music while studying.

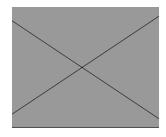

Physical learners

Take frequent breaks when studying alone. Learn new material while doing something active (e.g. exercise).

Work while standing up.

Take subjects that include practical activities and fieldwork.

- 1 Here are some more pieces of advice. Which types of learner are they for?
 - 1 Do something with your hands while studying. _______
 - 2 Use coloured pens to highlight important ideas.
 - 3 Repeat material aloud in your own words. _____
 - 4 Use flash cards when studying vocabulary.

- 2 Replace the underlined words in these sentences with words from the text. (The sentences are in the same order as the words in the text.)
 - 1 There are several different ways of solving this problem. _____
 - 2 If you are called a clever child, people expect you to do well.
 - 3 She asked me for some pieces of advice about the best way to solve the problem.
 - 4 Teachers sometimes change material to suit the needs of their students. _____
 - 5 Shall we look at the general idea first and leave the small points till later?
- Look at the different words that can go before the word attention and use them to complete the sentences below.
 - 1 Now that we've discussed the present situation, can we _____ our attention to the future?
 - 2 This is very important, so please _____ attention.
 - I prefer studying in silence so that there's nothing to _____ my attention.
 - 4 The story was a bit boring and it didn't _____ my attention.
 - 5 Some parts of the text are underlined to ______ the reader's attention on them.
- 2 Look at the diagram below. Then complete the sentences.

There are many ways to learn something, much of what you learn stays in your mind words, how much do you retain? The char shows how much information is retained, average, for different learning methods.

- 1 People remember most about a subject when they ______.
- 2 We only retain a tenth of what we ______.
- 3 _____ with fellow students is a good way to remember them.
- 4 ______seems to be the worst way to learn something.
- 3 Discuss these questions in pairs or small groups.
 - 1 Is there anything in the diagram that surprises you? What?
 - 2 Does your experience of learning and remembering things support what the diagram suggests?

4 Look at the examples. Use fixed expressions with make or do to complete the sentences.

Examples

You can make efforts to improve your learning.

It doesn't matter if you make a mistake. Just do your best.

Expressions with make and do

I needed help so I asked him to _____

Dear Sir/Madam,

I am writing (1) (in particular / in response) to your article about learning styles. It was an interesting article and, (2) (in general / in my opinion), I agreed with what the writer said. There were, however, one or two points that didn't seem quite right, (3) (in particular / in fact) the suggestion that schools use certain teaching methods because they don't understand the needs of their students. (4) (In short / In fact), most teachers know their students very well. Others may disagree, but (5) (in my opinion / in other words) the problem comes from the national tests students have to do, or from those who choose what should be in these tests. (6) (In other words / In general), we need to look at decisions made at a higher level than teachers and schools. (7) (In response / In short), I believe governments are responsible.

1 Look at the pictures. Then discuss the questions below in pairs or small groups.

- 1 What are the students doing in the pictures?
- 2 What impression do you get from the pictures?
- 3 How are the pictures similar or different from your own classrooms?
- 4 The pictures show classrooms in two of the most successful countries in the world (educationally and economically). Which countries do you think they might be?
- 2 Read the article about the two countries' education systems. Then complete the task at the top of page 15.

Two success stories (and what we can learn from them)

Education Ministers who are hoping to improve their school systems often look at Finland and Taiwan. The first is a small country in northern Europe with a cold climate and a language hardly anyone else speaks; the second is a very small island that until fairly recently had high levels of poverty and population. Yet today both of these countries come out at or near the top in international surveys of

- economic success. Year after year, they also score highly in educational results. Can this be an accident, or is there a connection?
 - Finnish Education Minister Tuula Haatainen certainly believes there is. 'In Finland, we believe we have to invest in education,' she says. One reason she offers for Finland's success is that students don't begin 'real' school until they are 7, and all students between 7 and 16 get the same education. 'We
- don't divide at an early stage between students who do well and those that don't manage so well,' she explains. 'Studies show that it is dangerous to divide too early into different educational paths.'
 - Like Finland, Taiwan has nine years of compulsory education, after which (in both countries), students choose either an academic or vocational path. Very few choose to leave school in either country. One important difference, however, is in national tests, which are very important in Taiwan but much less so
- in Finland.

Can other countries learn from the Finnish and Taiwanese experience? There are surely some lessons that can be learnt as long as we remember that just applying one country's system to another isn't a simple solution to all problems.

MODEL TEST 1 BLENDED LEARNING / MODULE (1)

Reading { 5 points}

 Read the text about sleep. Then choose the best ending for each sentence below and circle A. B or C.

A good night's sleep

I read this week about new research that says 'the right amount of sleep' helps students get better marks in tests. It also lowers the risk of some diseases in men, and is what makes women live longer than men. It sometimes seems that everyone thinks they know not just how much sleep others need but also where, when and how they do it. But is it possible to speak so generally? Famously, people like the French general Napoleon and British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher managed quite well with only four hours a night, and the American inventor Thomas Edison said sleep was 'a waste of time'.

Parents often try to make young children sleep at particular times because they won't sleep when we want them to: they wake us up in the middle of the night and they wake up too early. We say we're doing this because it's good for them, but actually it's because it fits our lives. As for older children, the researchers say most six- to 12-year-olds need around 10 hours' sleep a night, and that many parents don't realise this. They are also shocked that fewer than 20% of parents realised that having TVs and computers in bedrooms made their children less likely to sleep. But why so shocked? What world do these researchers live in?

Maybe some parents just understand better than others how young people's lives have changed. Perhaps we should follow the example of the headmaster of a school in Manchester, who recently made the decision to change his school's hours to fit the change in teenagers' body clocks. Since last year, the school has been opening at 10.00 (an hour later than before), with the extra time added at the end of the day. Students' exam results have improved by 19% or more in all subjects, which is hard to argue with.

It's also hard to disagree with Professor Simon Nelson, a 'sleep expert': 'How much sleep we need is simply enough to stop us feeling tired when we're awake.'

. 1 The research suggests that one advantage of sleeping enough is that it

A improves enam results. B prevents diseases. C belos men live as long as women.

2 The writer thinks that advice to people about their sleeping habits is

A a waste of time. B too general. C not possible.

3 The writer uses examples of famous people to show that

A famous people need less sleep than others. B sleeping less is actually better for us. C not everyone needs the same sleeping time.

4 According to the writer, most parents.

A wake their children up too early. B know what is good for their children.

C try to control their children's sleep times.

5 Researchers were surprised about A the things more percents don't have

A the things many parents don't know. Bolder children needing so much sleep. C children having TVs in their bedrooms.

6 The writer suggests that the researchers

A didn't ask enough purents. B don't understand modern life. C should have asked more people.

7 The school in Manchester

A now has shorter hours than it used to. B has made its pupils work harder. C is more successful in exams than it was.

8 in general, the writer's opinion is that

A sleeping needs change from person to person. B children should sleep when they want to.

C most people get as much sleep as they need.

.9 The word this (line 8) means:

A writing up early in the morning. B trying to change when children sleep. C sleeping at particular times.

1 Look at the headings and the pictures in the text below. Then discuss these questions in pairs or small groups.

What sports are the people doing? Do you think they are safe? Would you like to try them?

2 Read the text to find out more about the sports.

Adventure and extreme sports

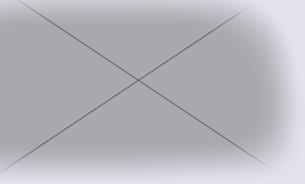

Adventure sports are all about excitement and skill in the outdoors. They usually do not involve teams and there are very few rules. Some of these adventure sports can be dangerous and an accident could result in serious injury or death. These are called extreme sports.

Here are three extreme sports that are popular around the world.

Kitesurfing

This extreme water sport involves holding on to a large kite while standing on a board. With a good wind it is possible to skim across the sea at speeds of over 100 kilometres per hour! It is also possible to jump several metres in the air and stay up for 20 seconds.

Skydiving

Skydiving is the name for jumping from a plane and diving through the air before opening a parachute at the last moment to land safely on the ground. During the fall, skydivers enjoy the sensation of speed and the sight of the world rushing up to meet them.

White-water rafting

This is done on small boats (called rafts) in rapidly-moving rivers. Where the water rushes over rocks it becomes white, which gives the sport its name. This is one adventure sport that is not done alone. Everyone in the raft must work together as a team.

Look quickly at the text below. Discuss these questions in pairs.

Where do you think it comes from? (e.g. a story book, a science textbook, a newspaper, a magazine, etc) It is about another extreme sport: bungee jumping. Look at the photo and diagram to see what bungee jumpers do. Would you like to try?

The first paragraph says 'Erin Langworthy ... got more of an adventure than she wanted'.

Read the text to find out

An adventure too far! JIM HOLDING she was rescued. She was in the Erin Langworthy, a 22-year-old back so I wasn't too worried.' elastic cord

Australian on holiday in Africa, got more of an adventure than she wanted when she did a bungee jump off the 111-metrehigh Victoria Falls Bridge.

Bungee jumping is an extreme sport that involves jumping off high buildings or bridges while attached to a large elastic cord. The jumper dives almost to the bottom before the cord pulls them back up again ... only not for Erin!

'Before my turn, 104 others had jumped safely,' she said. 'All my friends had been down and come what adventure Erin wanted.

The cord didn't last the 105th jump. It stopped her fall but then broke, letting her drop the final 40 metres into the Zambezi River below, which is the home to maneating crocodiles!

The river is fast moving and her leas were still tied to the cord so it was difficult for her to swim.

'It was quite scary because a couple of times the cord got caught on some rocks,' she explained. 'I had to swim down to pull the bungee cord free.'

Eventually she reached some rocks at the side and held on until water for 40 minutes. Later she was taken to hospital in South Africa where she had to spend a week but made a full recovery. And she has a great story to tell all her friends!

The hospital treatment cost $50,000, but she was lucky because she had travel insurance which paid for the treatment. In fact, she now helps the Australian government encourage young tourists to buy travel insurance before they go abroad.

Read the newspaper report again. Then answer the questions.

- 1 Why wasn't Erin too worried when she jumped?
- What words in the report tell us that she didn't fall straight into the river?
- Why couldn't she swim quickly to the side of the river?
